Announcement of the winners

The competition

The competition has three parts:

a. The candidates' technique, musicality, artistic expression and ability to concentrate are evaluated in a 90-minute ballet class

b. Free variation (which should be a choreography appropriate to the age of the candidate!)

All candidates must prepare a free variation (Group A maximum 180 seconds, Group B maximum 240 seconds). In Group A, variations from the classical ballet repertoire, whether they be an original version or an arrangement, are not permitted! A variation which is appropriate for the participant's age, physique and ability is required.

The candidates perform their variations in front of the jury on Saturday, when their performance is evaluated. The variation is then performed for the audience at the ballet gala on Sunday.

c. The candidate is given a short interview by the examiners. The names of the winners are announced on stage immediately after the gala on Sunday.

Evaluation

The evaluation and marking of the candidates takes place in camera on Saturday after the competition.

Please note that the gala is not part of the competition itself; the jury makes its decision on Saturday and the gala gives the candidates the opportunity to perform to the best of their ability without any competition pressure.

6. Prizes

The following prizes are awarded in both groups:

1st Prize: €500

2nd Prize: €300

3rd Prize: €150

All finalists receive a certificate.

A special prize is awarded for the best pointe work in each group: 'Der goldene Schuh' (the golden shoe)

7. Reception

After the gala there will be a reception in the theatre for all the candidates, their families and members of the audience.

8. Practice time

On Friday 10 January 2020 the candidates have the opportunity to rehearse their free variation in the ballet studio with their teacher (15 minutes per candidate). Candidates are informed of their time slot when they receive their written invitation to compete.

In addition, both groups are given a class by the competition ballet teacher on Friday in preparation for the competition class on Saturday. After the class, the class excerpt to be shown in the theatre will be rehearsed. The time of the class will be announced in the written invitation to compete.

9. Accommodation

The BFF will provide information on reasonably priced accommodation.
